Architect for the Tejano Monument

Born in Brownsville, Texas, son of James Beaman and Elvia Perez, Jaime moved to Tampico, Mexico at the age of 10. There he graduated from a Jesuit high school and went on The University of Texas at Austin on a golf scholarship. He graduated with a Bachelor of Architecture with Honors in 1978 and worked in the US, Mexico and Argentina on multiple large projects as a project manager.

In 1989 he returned to Austin and established his architectural firm, CasaBella Architects. His firm has produced noteworthy, design award winning projects in the US and Mexico:

- El Buen Samaritano Episcopal Mission, Austin
- Mexican American Cultural Center, in association with Mexico's renown architect Teodoro Gonzalez de Leon.
- Ullrich Water Treatment Plant expansion, Westlake Hills, Texas
- Cypress Creek Campus expansion for Austin Community College, Cedar Park
- 4 new elementary schools for Austin ISD
- And multiple university projects for over 14 campuses statewide.
- And soon, the Tejano Monument

Jaime is married to Patricia Zorrilla, his high school sweetheart, from Tampico, and has six daughters and one grandson.
